Case 1

Event Description

In January 2009, a 68-year-old woman with a physical disability was fatally attacked by a group of stray dogs in a rural area near Montesarchio, southern Italy. The victim, who lived alone, was found outside her home by a neighbor. Forensic examination revealed severe facial injuries, including traumatic avulsion of the nose and ears.

Context of the Attack

The woman reportedly fed local stray dogs, as food containers were discovered near her property.

Previous History

No documented episodes of aggression involving these dogs were reported.

Case 2

Event Description

In February 2009, an 11-month-old boy was fatally attacked by a Neapolitan Mastiff in the private garden of his home in Genzano di Roma, Italy. The infant was in a stroller when the family-owned dog assaulted him. The grandmother, who attempted to intervene, sustained multiple fractures.

Context of the Attack

The attack occurred within the family residence.

Previous History

The four-year-old dog was registered, vaccinated, and had no history of aggression.

Case 4

Event Description

In July 2009, a 6-year-old boy was fatally attacked by dogs kept in an enclosure adjacent to his home in Acireale, Sicily. The child sustained a fatal bite to the jugular region. Evidence suggested the animals may have been trained for fighting.

Context of the Attack

The boy entered the enclosure through a gap in the fence.

Previous History

No formal aggression records existed, but the environment suggested an increased risk of dangerous behavior.
